

RUSSIANS GO FROM KAMRANH

Fleet Is Now Coaling In Chinese Waters--
Seek To Protect Vladivostok Harbor.

TOGO IS ON THE ALERT JUST NOW

Will Seek To Force A Battle With The Russians Before
Their Reinforcements Arrive To Block
His Plans.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
London, April 22.—A dispatch to the Central News from Paris says it is announced there that Rojostevsky has left Kamranh bay today for the island of Hainan, where his vessels go to coal. Hainan is a large island north of Kamranh bay, in the Gulf of Tonquin, and belongs to China.

In Possit Bay
Tokio, April 22.—It is reported the Russians are concentrating in Possit bay, which is located at the northeast angle of Korea; and that they are planning to move into Korea in order to bar the advance of the Japanese toward Vladivostok.

Sees the Fleet
Tokio, April 22.—The ministry of marine announces a trustworthy eye witness report as seeing four Russian cruisers outside of Kamranh harbor and seven battleships inside. Six other warships were noticed in single formation outside the southern entrance to the bay.

Must Go at Once
St. Petersburg, April 22.—It is reported on high authority that the Emperor has ordered Rojostevsky's squadron to leave French territory waters. The order is said to be imperative.

Want News
Manila, April 22.—It is reported the Japanese consul here has received a cablegram addressed to Vice Admiral Kaminura. It is inferred that Kaminura was about to call at this port.

Waiting a Chance
St. Petersburg, April 22.—Advices from Vladivostok say the Russian armored cruisers Rossia and Grombol and the protected cruiser Bogatyr are cruising outside the harbor ready to make a diversion in favor of Rojostevsky at an opportune moment.

Makes a Protest
London, April 22.—The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says it understands the British ambassador to Paris has been interrupted in his Easter holiday and returned to Paris to present a note from his government supporting the protest of the Japanese against the stay of the Baltic fleet in Kamranh bay.

Supplies Coal to Fleet
The British steamer Hindu is unloading coal here and it is suspected it is for the Russians, who already have 45,000 tons of coal stored at this place. Five Russian colliers arrived to convey this coal to the fleet.

Saigon is reaping a big harvest from the visit of the Russians.
Gov. Gen. Beau intended to visit the bays on the Annam coast, but he has given up his trip on account of the presence of the Baltic fleet.

Expect New Arrivals.
Another Russian squadron, consisting of seven ships, including battleships and cruisers (Vice Admiral Nebozloff's) is expected to arrive here.

DANCER WEDS WEALTHY MAN; SURPRISES PITTSBURG

Former Kitchen Girl In The Pennsylvania
Coke Regions, Now a Millionaire's Wife.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Pittsburg, Pa., April 22.—Close following on the Carnegie-Hever marriage sensation, came an announcement which seemed simply to paralyze the social end of Pittsburg. The groom this time is Samuel S. Reymor, one of the two heirs of Jacob S. Reymor, of Reymor Brothers' candy business, and is worth millions. The bride is Nellie H. Paris, a mountaineer carnival dancer and former kitchen girl of the Fayette county coke regions, and daughter of a poor carpenter, William Paris of house 28, Lower row, Oliver, Pa.

Justice Performs Ceremony.
The couple were married March 6 by Justice of the Peace Festus M. King in the mill district of the south side and left late for the west. They are now in Denver.

The meeting, courtship and finally the marriage of Mr. Reymor and Miss Paris were romantic in the extreme. Four years ago, when 19 years old, Nellie left the smoky mining town of Oliver and came to Pittsburg. Her parents in their home at Oliver say she was employed for a time as a kitchen girl in Pittsburg.

Dances at Carnivals.
Afterward the glamour of the stage

daily. It is thought the squadron will remain for two weeks on the Annam coast.

It is believed here that one portion of the Russian fleet will meet the Japanese, while the other will make a wide detour in an endeavor to reach Vladivostok.

There is much comment among foreigners here concerning France's action in allowing the Russians to obtain complete supplies of provisions and coal.

LOOKS SERIOUS TO FRANCE.

Paris, April 22.—The threatened complications with Japan over the alleged violation of the neutrality of French waters in the far east has assumed serious proportions, and the government no longer makes an effort to conceal its anxiety.

It was stated at the foreign office that no representations of any kind had been presented by Great Britain concerning neutrality. At the same time it is anticipated that a British protest will be made. The fact that the British ambassador, Sir Francis Bertie, gave up his Easter holiday and returned to Paris after a conference with Lord Lansdowne in London appears to support this view.

Protest Would Be Untimely.

Anything like an energetic protest from Great Britain at this time would be deeply wounding to France, who relies on the Anglo-French entente as a counterpoise to Germany's menaces over Morocco.

There is an uneasy feeling that the resignation of M. Delcasse, as minister of foreign affairs, is closely associated with the crisis over the neutrality situation. Delcasse's fidelity to the Franco-Russian alliance is almost a tradition and his alleged weakness in the neutrality question made him the target of severe criticism from the socialist members of the chamber of deputies.

Anxious to Appease Japan.

The cabinet took unusual and energetic steps to prove to Japan that France will observe neutrality.

Orders were cable to Gov. Gen. Beau of Indo-China to make a specific report upon the exact location of the Russian fleet and to report whether it has or has not withdrawn from French waters.

Imperative orders were given for the complete disarmament of the Russian cruiser Diana, which took refuge in the harbor of Saigon after the defeat of the Port Arthur fleet on Aug. 10 last. The Diana has been undergoing extensive repairs. The main parts of the cruiser's machinery must now be unshipped and handed over to French authorities.

There she quietly informed the family that she was married and intended leaving in a day or so for Denver. She said she would return afterward and make her home in Pittsburg. The Paris family admit they have never seen Reymor, though he wrote to them.

HARSH MEASURES TO SET PORTE IN LINE

State Department Backs Up Minister
Leishman, Thus Securing Desired
Interview With Turkish Ruler.

Washington, April 22.—Some of the difficulties encountered by the American minister at Constantinople in his efforts to gain an audience with the sultan last year to obtain settlement of American claims are set forth in an official paraphrase made public at the state department of a cablegram received at the time from Minister Leishman.

Mr. Leishman reported that, in the absence of any further communication from the palace about the audience he attended Selanik and that the grand master of ceremonies informed him that on account of important visits in the harem his majesty could not receive him that day. In view of the fact that the audience was demanded in the name of the president and that he had been twice put off, it seemed to Mr. Leishman to be beneath the dignity of the government of the United States to have him go again to the palace to seek an audience unless positive assurance be given in advance that he would be received by the sultan. He requested further instructions.

Exasperated by the dilatoriness of the porte, Secretary Hay informed Mr. Leishman "that the American fleet will arrive at Smyrna in a few days, and instructs him to use his best endeavors to obtain a satisfactory answer from the Turkish government before its arrival, and, if that government should continue to refuse or to neglect to grant the moderate and reasonable requests of this government, to ask an indefinite leave and to depart from Turkey in one of the United States naval vessels, leaving the legation in charge of the secretary of legation."

BUSINESS GAINS AT GREAT PACE

Demand For Products Of Mine And Forest Is Constantly Increasing All Over.

TRADE IN GRAIN MUCH HEAVIER

Marketing of Cereals Is Fifty Per Cent Heavier Than A Year Ago--Shipments Are Trebled.

Chicago, April 22.—The weekly review of Chicago trade, published by R. G. Dun & Co., says:
"Seasonable progress has been made and business activity is more generally diversified, the increased volume involving the employment of additional working forces and capital. New demands are well sustained, and heavier receipts of mine and forest products testify to expanded consumption of raw material. Grain marketing was fully 50 per cent larger than for the corresponding week last year, and shipments were almost trebled, the movement mainly being for domestic use.

"Arrivals of live stock and hides were liberal, packing proceeded vigorously, and the primary markets for foodstuffs exhibited further activity.

"Railroad earnings continue gaining and reflect unusual current forwarding of factory output and general merchandise. Iron and steel production is close to the limit of capacity in this district, shipbuilding and heavy construction are on a larger scale and prices for all furnace, mill and workshop supplies show firmness.

"Other favorable features are satisfactory dealings in the jobbing and retail branches, together with advices indicating that the agricultural conditions are excellent and country trading advancing.

In Mercantile Field.

Mercantile collections for both city and interior are found reasonably prompt. Distributors report more cash buying than formerly. Demand for money was active for both commercial and investment purposes, considerable going into real estate and improvements, an evidence of confidence in the future course of business. Rail mills added to the bookings for delivery next year, structural shapes are in more demand and sales of pig iron show that future needs are being protected by important interests.

"Receipts of lumber aggregated 43,268,000 feet, against 28,352,000 feet a year ago. Building permits were $1,803,100, against $280,300 for the same week last year. Building material of all kinds remained in strong request and the lumber yards and wood mills increased shipments to outside points.

Grain and Live Stock.

"Grain receipts, 3,320,721 bushels, compared with 6,555,974 bushels last week and 2,168,407 bushels a year ago. The shipments were 4,152,122 bushels, against 4,768,925 bushels last week and 1,479,558 bushels a year ago. There was more steadiness in the demand for flour and dealings increased in wheat and the coarse grains. Crop conditions influenced board of trade operations and realizing sales appeared. Provisions were in good supply on enlarged packing.

"Live stock receipts, 320,477 head, compared with 286,593 head for same week last year. Demand slackened for sheep and hogs, but choice beefs were sought. Compared with closings a week ago, cattle are slightly higher, and lower quotations appear in the grains and provisions.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number 29, against 25 last week and 21 a year ago."

MAKES CAMERA TEST OF KITE FOR WARS

Army Officials Make Experiments With Electrically Controlled Apparatus
Indian Head Proving Grounds.

Washington, April 22.—A board of army officers, among whom was Gen. A. W. Greely, the chief signal officer, went to the Indian Head proving grounds Friday to conduct experiments by which a camera suspended in the air by means of a kite may be controlled and operated by an electric device operated by a person standing on the ground. It is claimed that photographs of the surrounding country for a distance of ten or twelve miles may be taken in this way.

There was considerable wind blowing and some rain fell, but notwithstanding this three exposures were secured at various distances in the air, one of which was taken at an altitude of perhaps 400 feet. It will be some days before the plates are developed. Army officers are watching the developments with considerable interest in view of the possibility of the use of the camera for purposes of photographing an enemy's troops and defenses in actual warfare.

SENATOR PLATT DIES IN HIS HOME TOWN

Breaking of Abscess in Right Lung
Ends Severe Attack of Pneumonia
Contracted at Funeral.

Washington, Conn., April 24.—United States Senator Orville H. Platt died at his summer home in this, his native town, at 8:53 Friday night from pneumonia. The end came almost unexpectedly, the immediate cause being the breaking of the abscess which had formed in the right lung and which produced strangulation. In the room at the time were Mrs. Platt and the senator's only son, Judge James P. Platt of the United States circuit court.

Senator Platt's illness dates from his return to his residence here from Hartford on March 21, when he attended the funeral of his former colleague, Gen. Joseph R. Hawley. The day of the funeral was chilly and stormy, and Senator Platt caught a severe cold, which shortly after his return home developed pneumonia. Hard work in connection with his senatorial duties had already sapped his naturally vigorous constitution, and his advanced age, 78 years, also told against him in his struggle with the disease.

Big Bears In The Market Drop Out, And The Littles Fellows Are Badly
Squeezed.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Chicago, April 22.—The wheat market went to smash this morning amid a panic on the Board of Trade. May options scored a loss of six cents within a few minutes, creating a veritable riot among the traders who have been relying upon Armour to hold the market to the $1.17 mark. The slump this morning followed the announcement of Gates, Armour and the northwestern people associated with Armour with the holders of cash wheat finally agreeing upon a settlement and the closing out of the May wheat deal. May wheat closed at $1.10 on Thursday and opened this morning at $1.09. With the announcement the big men had decided to get out the option dropped to $1.05 and then down to $1.03. May wheat sustained a further decline of three cents, closing at $1 even. The total decline for the day is 10c.

HARDSHIPS MEET THE IRRIGATORS

EXPENSES ARE VERY HIGH FOR THE CONSTRUCTION.

GOVERNMENT WOULD HELP

Interior Department Anxious to Reduce Cost of Dam Construction.

Then sensation searchers have endeavored to put a veneer phase on the action of the Secretary of the Interior and the Director of the Geological Survey in securing special railroad rates for the material used in the construction of government irrigation works in the west.
Comptroller Tracewell of the Treasury Department holds that the transaction is in opposition to the interstate commerce act, in that it violates the rebate clause. Secretary Hitchcock and Director Walcott of the Geological Survey have been acting in this matter entirely in the interests of the irrigation farmers, and they maintain that they are entirely within the law while the reduced rates arranged with the railroad enables contractors to do the work cheaper than otherwise. In fact the government specifications particularly call attention to the reduced transportation rates in order that the government may get the benefit of the lowest bids. The matter is to be referred to the Attorney General.

It is to be hoped that the special railroad rates can be allowed as desired by the Interior Department, which now has under project works which will cost some thirty million dollars and the Irrigation Service, states that by securing these lower rates which the railroads are willing to grant, there will be a saving in construction cost of a million dollars within the next seven years.

The press dispatches have omitted the significant fact that it is not a question of the government saving this money. They have stated in fact that it is a government saving and Comptroller Tracewell discusses the subject with the idea in view that the government is trying to save for itself a little money. If this million dollars can be saved through railroad concessions, it will be a direct saving of that amount to the farmers and settlers who are to make homes or have already established homes on the irrigated lands, and who, under the irrigation law, must pay back to the government the cost of the construction of the irrigation works. The appropriation for the government irrigation works is in the nature of a loan to the farmers to be paid back at the end of ten years, the government at the same time improving its property and making it habitable and productive. For this reason and because there is no question of competitive rates which injure anyone, it is to be hoped that a way will be found out of the difficulty discovered by Comptroller Tracewell.

Timber Land Scribers Foiled
The absolute repeal of the Forest Reserve Lien Selection law in the closing days of the last session of Congress dropped like a bomb into the camp of the speculators in western timber lands, leaving them, by a stroke of the pen, practically out of a job.

The repeal completely kills what is known as the "scrip" business and leaves out in the cold a large number of speculators with these forest reserve selection rights, or as it is commonly termed, "scrip" worthless upon their hands. Many others who have been buying up cheap and worthless lands in what they believed would soon be included in exchanging these lands for valuable government timber lands, have found themselves badly scopped.
The somewhat amusing feature of the situation lay in the fact that one-half of the scrippers did not know what had happened. The law was repealed by an act entitled "An act to prohibit the selection of timber lands in lieu of lands in forest reserves."

This bill passed the house last year and coming over to the Senate was amended in committee by Senator Hansbrough and variously chopped to pieces and added to until finally an amendment offered by Senator Nelson was adopted simply cutting off the dog's tail immediately behind the ears, and wiping the entire law off the statute book—a far different action than that originally intended or than indicated in the title to the bill.

The repeal of this law is believed to be one of the best moves in land law reform and will prevent the recurrence of such crimes as the Benson frauds.

THEBES BRIDGE HAS BEEN COMPLETED

New Cotton Belt Bridge Has Cost Many Millions of Dollars To Build.

At a cost of three and one-half million dollars and three years' time, the new Cotton Belt bridge over the Mississippi river at Thebes, Ill., was opened to traffic April 18.

Ten years ago the construction of such a bridge would have cost probably a million dollars or more. The Thebes bridge being a combination of the best points of the three accepted styles of bridge engineering, is unlike any other in this country, and improvement of method has materially reduced its cost. The plan involves what is known as the fixed, through, cantilever spans, and the bridge is as substantial as it is possible to make it.

It is a double track structure and its location is a particularly fortunate one, owing to the high bluffs on each side of the river which obviate the necessity of the usual long approaches.

The bridge consists of a continuous steel structure of five spans. The central, or channel span is 671 feet long; the two spans on either side of the channel span are 521 feet 2 inches long; the two end spans are 518 feet, 6 inches long; the two fixed spans are 75 feet high between centers of chords; the suspended spans are 55 feet high between chords at the center; the distance center to center of trusses is 32 feet. There are approximately 14,000 tons of steel in the structure.

The six main piers supporting the steel superstructure are founded on bed rock. The total height of the structure from the bottom of the lowest foundation to the top of the highest point of the superstructure is 231 feet.

The bridge is approached at both ends by concrete arches. There are five 65-foot arches in the East approach and six 65-foot arches and one 100-foot arch in the West approach. The concrete in the approaches is of Portland cement. The total amount is estimated at $5,000,000.

The road bed on both approaches is double track, ballasted and 85-pound rails used. The total length of the bridge proper, including concrete approaches, is 3,807 feet. The total length of the entire construction, including earth approaches, is 4.7 miles.

The completion of this bridge does away with the Cotton Belt's car ferry transfer at Thebes, and will enable passenger trains to make an hour quicker time from St. Louis to Texas. It will shorten freight schedules five hours.

The Cotton Belt has spent $350,000 in terminal improvements at Illinois, just west of the bridge on the Mississippi side, and owns all terminal facilities and track connections on that side of the river.

This bridge lifts the Cotton Belt at the front among the important lines from St. Louis to the Southwest. The management will at once inaugurate a new fast freight service between Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and St. Louis. Through freight from St. Louis to Texas will be delivered in much shorter time than has ever before been attempted.

In anticipation of heavy traffic the company is preparing to double track the line from the river to a point sixty miles west. The fact that the Cotton Belt already has the lowest grade line to the Southwest and has been newly laid with 75 and 85 pound steel rails will make this road a vital competitor for Southwestern business, and is certain to make a strong showing in future earnings.

A CARD.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

All through the big house on the hill, where many of the blind children of the state find a home for the greater part of the year, eager voices and pattering feet indicated that something of unusual interest was transpiring.

It was Easter morning, and the night before, down in the big kitchen a liberal supply of Easter eggs had been boiled and colored, and just before bed time the children had scattered them over the house, hiding them away as carefully and securely with deft fingers, as they could have done if aided by the sense of vision.

When the Superintendent stepped to the table and faced the school for morning exercise, a little basket containing half a dozen eggs, and an Easter greeting welcomed him, and as he looked into the eager faces the thought impressed him with peculiar significance that the resurrection morn would mean more to the little audience with sightless eyes than it could possibly mean to any other class.

The old, old story of the empty sepulchre and the stone rolled away, the man in the garden and the joy which overwhelmed his friends when they met him, was simply told and the day passed into history.

Many changes have come to the little family since, and some of its members have opened glad eyes to an Easter morn so intensely real that its brightness will never fade.

Another Easter day has dawned, and tomorrow throughout the land, churches will vie with each other in song and anthem, and floral tribute in recognition of the day.

There is something about the question of immortality which interests alike the scoffer and believer, and it is difficult to find a man so low and depraved, who is ready to admit that the present life is the end of existence.

The theory is advanced and generally believed that the part of our being which suffers pain is the invisible part, that intangible thing called spirit which lives on after the casket crumbles away.

It is also a well established fact that mental suffering, a difficult thing to analyze, surpasses in tenacity all other kinds of suffering. Many a man has said, "I would give my right arm to recall some word or deed of the past."

The belief in another life is so well established that Easter morn like Christmas is simply celebrated as an anniversary.

There are other conditions connected with the present that are not so well established, and the great concern which should interest many people, is not the life beyond, but the life of "the here and now."

In the world of nature about us plant life dies with monotonous regularity. The fields of golden grain yield their harvest and the yellow stalks expire never to be resurrected. They have accomplished well their mission and in the enjoyment of the fruitage but little thought is given to the "seeded" and yellow leaf.

Many people have a notion that the frost is responsible for the death of vegetation, but in the south below the frost line, the same conditions prevail. There may be perpetual summer, but perpetual life is an unknown quantity in the vegetable kingdom.

In the realm of animal life the birds of the air and fish of the sea have a brief existence and now races take the place of the old at frequent intervals.

Locate a robin as he comes to your home from the south where he is hunted as a game bird, and where he is driven to the dense forests for protection. He builds his nest near your house, and likes his home so well that for a year or two he returns to enjoy it, then he fails to return because his brief life has ended. This experience is repeated with monotonous regularity throughout the domains of animal life.

The kingdom of man is the only one to which Easter comes with any significance, and yet life in this kingdom is so lightly regarded, and so poorly appreciated that but little thought is given to either the life beyond, or the present life.

Dissolution in this kingdom means more than suspended animation, for the triple existence with which man is endowed—the body, mind, and spirit represents a combination of life unknown to all other realms.

The body develops and matures, through exercise and nourishment until it becomes a monument of physical strength and endurance. The mind unfolds under the stimulus of activity and faithful application, while the soul, inspired by hope, contributes to the well-being of both mind and body.

These three forms of life are not dependent upon each other for existence. It is possible for a man to possess a body which represents the strength of a giant in physical development, with a mind so weak that a single idea would embarrass it, and a heart so obscure as to be difficult to discover.

Or a well equipped mind may be domiciled in a tenement so frail that the utmost care is necessary to prolong life. Some people are all heart, with neither mind or body to steady a nature so emotional as to be carried away by every wind that blows. The skeletons which haunt the world today, are not the skeletons of the closet. They are the skeletons of mind and heart, which walk the streets every day wearing clothes like other people, yet mentally and morally dead many years before the heart ceases to pulsate.

If you have ever tried to talk with this kind of a skeleton you have discovered that there was nothing to talk to but a frame with wearing apparel attached. You also discovered that the mind was no more of a blank than the heart, which was destitute of all the finer sensibilities.

There are homes where the wife and mother is a walking skeleton and where responsibility for her condition rests with the husband who vowed in sacred wedlock to nourish and cherish her through life. The vow has been ruthlessly broken so many times that hope died in her heart and ambition faded away under the influence of despair.

What the world needs at this Easter time is a resurrection of dead hopes and dead ambitions. A renewal of life for the journey which stretches on into the years. There is no occasion for concern about the resurrection of the future. That will follow as naturally as the night follows the day and no hand can stay it.

The great concern is for the present and if this fact is fully appreciated the day of final separation will be but the climax, with the life which goes on well equipped for the journey.

If the Governor don't capture the railroad vote it won't be for lack of well planned effort. His latest message indicates that he is very solicitous for the welfare of the men in railway employ. It might be inferred that the companies take delight in killing off their men or maiming them for life.

Better no rate commission bill than a law that will paralyze the industries of the state. The judgment of manufacturers and men financially interested ought to be worth more than the opinion of men whose only capital is cheap talk founded on theoretical ideas.

The class of business men who combine against advertising are a detriment to the community. If every merchant should go into that sort of a deal grass would grow in the streets. These are prosperous times, and every man in business owes it to himself to exert every effort to increase his business.

The doctors of the state are trying to pass a bill to prevent advertising on the part of the profession, and yet no class of men enjoy cheap notoriety more. The code of ethics used to be considered a sufficient safeguard. Many a poor fellow has been starved out by ethics.

The Milwaukee administration organ dares the conservative element in the senate to do its own thinking and act upon its own judgment on the rate commission question. The senate was not made to order and the game of bluff won't work.

If the grief which has come to the trading stamp companies proves to be permanent, it will be a God send to many business men who have been heavy investors in this kind of impractical advertising.

The man who lacks the disposition or ability to do more business this year than he did last, has no right to be in trade. The age is progressive, and the procession has no disposition to wait for laggards.

The argument of the Mayor against a street sweeper is the thinnest kind of an argument. How long has the city been running a pension agency.

Politics entered largely into the election of city officers, as the record of the first council meeting plainly shows.

If your wife wants a garden, buy some black dirt and give her a chance.

What will happen to the state if the Governor goes to Washington?

It is a good time to clean house and swear at the stove pipe.

Minneapolis Journal: Susan B. Anthony does not have such a bad opinion of divorce as some people. As it was a good thing for the slave to be able to run away and go to Canada, so she thinks it is good for a woman with a cruel master to be able to go into court and get freedom. You may be right, Susan.

Madison Journal: A concern in Wausau is making cement slungies. This sounds like progress. The thing interlock; they may be made things width, form or color. The industry is a branch of the artificial building stone industry. Wood must look to its laurels. It is claimed for these cement slungies that they are cheaper than wood, lighter and cheaper than slate, are easily laid and practically indestructible, nor can wind or rain get beneath them.

Philadelphia Telegram: District attorney Jerome of New York has called Thomas Jefferson a faker, but there is some consolation for the mean remark in knowing that Jerome will not be called anything when he has been dead as long as Tom.

Milwaukee Sentinel: A young man living in Australia recently smoked eight pipes of opium, and went home and killed his wife, thinking her a caterpillar. Young men, do not smoke! Perhaps you have a sweetheart who regards you as her only protector. Do you want to blow into the flat some night and take her for a great lizard. DO YOU? You may imagine that because you smoke only in moderation such an absurd illusion will never come to you. But it is only a short step from a 5-cent cigar to an opium hell.

Delavan Enterprise: The shame and disgust which the good people at Lake Geneva must feel at the brazen action of the city council in allowing the saloons to re-open immediately after election, finds an echo in the heart of every good citizen in the county. When the city voted for no-license, the saloons could not be closed until July 1, but when license again prevailed, the city authorities could over-ride all law and precedent in their unseemly haste to open the grog shops. As a result there has been a carnival of drunkenness and disorderliness the past week. Well, the nine months experience of Lake Geneva under no-license served one good purpose—it has been clearly demonstrated that the law can be enforced.

Chicago Chronicle: The severest penalties imposed thus far during this week of riot and disorder have been directed against certain persons who were attempting to earn an honest living without a card from the teamsters' union. Every Chicagoan who knows enough to get home at night knows that a union leader, although nominally protected by the law, has had no chance peacefully to earn a living in this town since the present strike began. The non-union man has had the law on his side. He has been entitled to recognition and support. The union man has been the rail offender, and yet the non-union man is the one who fares ill at the hands of the police justices.

Minneapolis Journal: Some day there is going to be a terrible revolt in this country against the boiled shirt. We are not going to wear boards on our bosoms surmounted by picket fences when the laundryman feels cross and cuts a saw-edge on our collars. American manhood is going to rise in its might some day and carefully drop the starched shirt over into the next lot where the tin cans are. Today we haven't the nerve to do it. We are under the domination of social and commercial propriety to such an extent that we do not dare to arise and proclaim our freedom in the name of liberty of person and freedom of conscience. Some day we will wear soft shirts and flowing collars and the man who wears a starched board on his bosom and a sheet-front ring around his neck will be known for the concealed and artificial ass that he really is.

BESTOWS HONOR ON THE HIGH SCHOOL

Graduates Will Be Allowed to Enter Chicago University Without Examination.

Professor Miller of Chicago university this week paid the Janesville high school a visit, and after a most thorough inspection of the work done assured Superintendent Buell that the school would be placed on the list of institutions, the graduates of which are allowed to enter the Midway college without examination. Professor Butler of the same institution inspected the local school last year and spoke highly of the class of work. He said, at the time, if the school continued in the same course another inspection would make its graduates eligible to entrance. Through the Janesville graduates could hitherto enter the Chicago university without an entrance examination, by reason of the school being on the list of eligible schools of the Western University and College association, the present move is a great honor.

MENINGITIS FOUND AT JOHNSONS CREEK

New York Physician Says the Disease Is Contagious and Care Should Be Taken.

George, the 3-year-old son of William Schneider of Johnsons Creek, died yesterday morning after an illness of only twelve hours. The physician pronounced the case cerebro spinal meningitis. As a result of the investigation being made by a commission into the spread of cerebro spinal meningitis in New York city, Health Commissioner Darlingston stated that he believes the communicability of the disease has been sufficiently well established to warrant the placing of all cases under the same rules as apply to scarlet fever, diphtheria and other contagious diseases.

RINGLINGS' CIRCUS TRAINS PASS THRO'

Janesville on Way to Chicago, Where Big Show Closes Engagement Tonight—Local Men With It.

Three sections of Ringling Bros. circus trains, en route to Chicago, where the show closes its engagement at the Coliseum this evening, arrived in Janesville over the North-Western railroad last evening. The first reached here at 9:15 in time to meet the vestibule. The trains were made up of the sleeping cars used by the 800 employees of the show and the baggage and stock cars containing the horses, wagons, and tents. The second section arrived in the local yards at 10:20 and moved on to Chicago after a brief delay. Monday morning the big caravan starts on its tour of the country. Janesville men who will be with the organization are: Frank Palmer, William Charles, Richard McNeil, and Peter Goodman. The two latter were in charge of the horses with the second section last evening.

SOCIETY.

Forty-five comrades of Asst. Adjt. Gen. E. O. Kimberley of the Wisconsin G. A. R. Department of Wisconsin, celebrated with him his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary last evening. The home on South Main street was appropriately decorated for the occasion. American beauty roses and national colors being used to advantage. A fifteen-foot flag covered one end of the dining-room, where a sumptuous repast was served at nine o'clock, and a huge birthday cake, ornamented with red, white, and blue candies, formed the centre-piece of the long table. Miss Maria Gibbs had charge of the catering. When the cigars were lighted and the story-tellers had resumed their anecdotes, Department Commander Piny Norcross, who had come from Madison especially for the occasion, arose and offered a graceful tribute to the host and hostess, praising the former for his helpful labors in sustaining the local post as well as many others in the state. At the conclusion, in behalf of W. H. Sargent, Post No. 26, he presented Col. Kimberley with a handsome sterling-silver mounted cane, appropriately inscribed—a gift which the recipient assured his hearers he would ever prize. Remarks were made by Samuel Cobb, W. H. Rogers of Ft. Atkinson, W. W. Rodrick of Broadhead, W. H. Grinnell of Beloit, and others, and Miss Wimbler sang a patriotic melody. The visitors reluctantly took their departure at twelve o'clock, after having passed a most delightful evening. Col. Kimberley received several telegrams of regret from friends in other cities who found it impossible to be present.

"There is more than one aspect of this party-club business and the wrong is not all on one side," said a young bachelor who prides himself on being in good form and doing the right thing. The subject was called up by "Indignation's" complaint in the "Kickers' Column" of Wednesday and the man related this experience: "Within two weeks of a card party given by two young ladies who live on the west side, I called at the home to do the beautiful. One of them opened the door and before I had removed my hat gave me this rather abrupt, matter-of-fact, book-agent sort of a greeting: 'Hello—who do you want to see?' I just said 'Hello' back to her and asked if her mother was in. Young lady thought she was and would see if she was too busy to see me. Well, she wasn't, and we had a nice little chat while the recent hostess returned to the occupation which had been engrossing her attention up to the time when I put in my appearance—probably a popular novel. I suppose I broke in just where the hero had gotten into the clear and was speeding to the fair Violetta's home with a bunch of Easter lilies."

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Guenther, 619 North Avon street, in Rockford, Ill., Wednesday morning at half-past eight were united in marriage Miss Emma Nelson and Seth Temple of this city. Rev. Bannan of the English Lutheran church of the Forest city performed the ceremony and only the relatives of the happy couple were present. The bride is well-known and the groom, who is employed at the F. A. Taylor coal yard, is a popular young man. Mr. and Mrs. Temple are at home to friends at 204 South River street. Mrs. Guenther at whose home in Rockford the wedding occurred, is a sister of the groom.

Many Janesville people are planning to attend the annual military party given by the Monroe Guards' Armory association at their armory in Monroe, Easter Monday, April 24. These parties are the events of the season and greater efforts than ever before are being put forth to make this eclipse all former events. Gible orchestra, the finest in northern Illinois, will furnish the music. The hall is one of the largest and finest dance halls in the state. The hall will be well-lighted and handsomely decorated.

During Lent there were those who gave up all theatre-going but clung to bridge-whist. When there was an extra good attraction here that they much wished to see, they would call up other self-denying friends by phone and invite them over to play a game or two in order to take the keen edge off the suffering caused by their mutual self-sacrifice. Now worldly ones who did not observe Lent, when they heard about these things, propounded this problem: "Should the theatre-manager who was made an unwilling party to the sacrifice receive any part of the Easter offering?"

In the third ward are four little girls who each Sunday, afternoon hold a church service of their own. One of them preaches a text taken from the Bible; hymns are sung, prayers made, and everything conducted just as a church should be. The four little ones who take this unique method of enjoying their Sunday afternoons are little Miss Jeffris, daughter of M. G. Jeffris; little Miss Lewis, daughter of F. F. Lewis, and the two Misses Rogan.

This afternoon Helen King, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. King, is celebrating her ninth birthday at the home of her parents. Her little friends spent the afternoon playing games and later a delicious lunch was served to them.

BLAZE ON RACINE STREET NEAR NOON

Claude Inman's Home Damaged to Extent of $300 by Fire Starting in Store-Room.

Shortly after half-past ten o'clock this morning Mrs. Claude Inman, who lives at 57 Racine street, went up stairs to sweep. As she passed the store-room where a feather mattress and other bedding were kept she seemed to detect the odor of smoke and opening the door found the whole interior in a sheet of flame. Hastening to the telephone she begged central to call the fire department. By the time the wagons and firemen arrived the flames had been communicated to the garret and roof and the prospects for saving the house were not overbright. However, prompt work with the axes, chemical extinguishers, and pitch-forks, saved the structure. The loss is estimated at about $300 and is covered by insurance both on furnishings and the house itself. The origin of the flames is a mystery. Two alarms were sent in for this fire.

He Assumed His Official Duties as Street Commissioner This Morning—Has Had Valuable Experience.

James Sennett, the newly elected street commissioner, entered upon the duties of his office today and his friends are certain that he will make an efficient and satisfactory official. He has had large experience in the somewhat similar work of carrying out large railroad grading contracts and from previous service in the council as alderman from the fifth ward he has doubtless gained an insight into the city's needs. Mr. Sennett has been a resident of Janesville for twenty years.

RACINE GOLFERS ANXIOUS TO COME

Want to Play Two Match Games with Janesville During Present Season—Elgin Also Applies.

William S. Fish, chairman of the sports and games committee of the Racine Golf club, has written to Secretary J. P. Baker of the Winnebago club asking for two match games during the present season—one to be played at Janesville and the other at Racine. If the dates are arranged Racine will send from ten to eighteen men here and accommodate a like or larger number on its own links. The writer adds that the Racine organization is not what might be called a strong playing team and that their purpose is to make the matches social events rather than trials of strength. Elgin has asked for a date and the regular annual games with Rockford will be played this season.

WOMEN NOT TRUTHFUL

This Statement Has Been Unjustly Made, Because Modest Women Evade Questions Asked By Male Physicians.

An eminent physician says that "Women are not truthful; they will lie to their physician." This statement should be qualified; women do tell the truth, but not the whole truth, to male physicians, but this is only in regard to those painful and troublesome disorders peculiar to their sex.

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions when those questions are asked, even by her family physician. This is especially the case with unmarried women.

It is any wonder, then, that women continue to suffer and that doctors fail to cure female diseases when they cannot get the proper information to work on?

This is the reason why thousands and thousands of women are now corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham. To her they can and do give every symptom, so that she really knows more about the true condition of her patients, through her correspondence with them than the physician who personally questions them.

If you suffer from any form of trouble peculiar to women, write at once to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will advise you free of charge.

The fact that this great boon, which is extended freely to women by Mrs. Pinkham, is appreciated, the thousands of letters received by her prove. Many such grateful letters are the following are constantly pouring in.

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands A Woman's Ills.

Mrs. Ella Lee, Frankford, Ind., writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"I want to thank you for what your medicine has done for me. Three years ago I had inflammation of the ovaries and uterus on my womb. I was under the doctor's care for about three months, and the only time I was not in pain was when under the influence of morphine. The doctor finally said I never would be better, and would be an invalid the rest of my life. I had given up in despair, but one evening I came across one of your advertisements and decided to write you for advice. I did so and commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began to improve at once, and to-day I am a well woman, and I know it is all due to your advice and medicine."

Mrs. J. H. Farmer of 2803 Elliott Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"I cannot thank you enough for what your advice and medicines have done for me. They have done me more good than all the doctors I ever had. For the last eight years I have suffered with female troubles; was very weak; had nervous prostration, and could not do my work, but I am happy to say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made a different woman of me. I am in perfect health and have gained in weight from 88 pounds to 125 pounds."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record for actual cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The Witch of Cragenstone

By ANITA CLAY MUNOZ.

For a time to silence they watched the beauty of the golden tiled clouds breaking apart and drifting about under the blue sky; then Margaret, whose face expressed great happiness and who seemed unable to contain her high spirits, said: "Art not weary of the close, damp air of the house? Come, let us walk on the old stone wall by the pasture, for the ground is much too water soaked, and witness for ourselves what havoc the storm hath played."

Hastily procuring a light cape, she threw it over the muslin house dress she wore, and, Hetty following, the girls, refusing to listen to the protests of Elsbeth, who met them on the stairs, against going out of doors on such a morning, stepped out on to the ground, picked their way daintily—with much light laughter—over the wet paths, climbed the wall and, holding hands, ran gaily with the light heartedness of school children set free after long confinement along the top of the broad stone wall.

"I faith, 'tis worth a pound to get out into the open and breathe fresh air again!" Margaret exclaimed, her blue eyes sparkling and her cheeks aglow.

The ribbon that bound her hair came loose, and in very abandonment of youth and health she threw it away, freeing her heavy masses of hair to the embraces of the wind, which caught it up tenderly, allowing the sun to kiss it with its sparkling rays, gently soothed it about her head; then, as it catching the gay mood of its owner, it grew more playful and roughly swept the tresses before Margaret's eyes, so that she almost stumbled as she ran. A large oak branch hung low over the wall. With a cry of pleasure Margaret caught hold of it and, lifting her feet, swung out into the air and back to the wall again, laughing joyfully at her achievement as she ran on to the end of the wall.

"Margaret!" Hetty exclaimed, running after her cousin, rather breathless at the whole proceeding. "What merry spirit of mischief doth possess thee?" "Take my hand, sweet cousin, and run some of the Puritan stiffness out of thee," Margaret replied with flushed face and smiling lips. "My blood is coursing through my veins and my heart beats gaily today because the daisies are drying up that lead from London to this village. Look not so bewildered, sweet. Thou'lt know again why thy cousin welcomes wind and sun. See, the clouds are scattering and drifting far away! Come, Hetty, once more!" And, taking her cousin's hand, they ran together to the end of the wall.

"I'm out of breath, but back again! I'll wager I'll get there before thee, slow Hetty."

She paused a moment, looking toward the house. "What man is that demanding admittance?" she asked. "Margaret is looking on us with disapproval."

"Thou knowest well 'tis Josiah," fathered Hetty. "Dost think he saw us running, cousin?"

"Aye, even so an he did. What carest thou or I?" Margaret replied indifferently as she proceeded calmly toward the house along the top of the wall, followed by Hetty, now white faced and greatly abashed.

"We will go to meet him, Hetty, and give him greeting."

Josiah, thus, busied himself with tying his horse to a tree until his cousin and sister approached, then, standing erect, regarded them coldly, with an unsmiling expression in his small gray eyes.

"I give thee good day, Cousin Josiah."

A Living Monument.

If we were to assemble all those who have been cured of heart disease by Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and who would to-day be in their graves had not Dr. Miles' been successful in perfecting this wonderful heart specific, they would populate a large city.

What a remarkable record—a breathing, thinking, moving monument, composed of human lives,—that for which every other earthly possession is sacrificed.

The Miles Medical Co. receive thousands of letters from these people like the following:

"I feel indebted to the Dr. Miles' Heart Cure for my life. I desire to call the attention of others suffering as I did to this remarkable remedy for the heart. For a long time I had suffered from shortness of breath after any little exertion, palpitation of the heart, and at times terrible pain in the region of the heart, so serious that I feared that I would some time drop dead upon the street. One day I read one of your circulars, and immediately went to my druggist and purchased two bottles of the Heart Cure, and took it according to directions, with the result that I am entirely cured. Since then I never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy to my friends who have heart trouble. In fact I am a traveling advertisement for it, and am widely known in this locality."

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit it. If it fails he will refund your money.

Margaret said quietly. "How can I serve thee? Will enter?"

She threw open the door. "Thank thee, Cousin Margaret," he replied in a hard, rasping voice. "I but rode up with a message for my sister."

Until then he had ignored Hetty, but now turned upon her suddenly with great sternness in his manner.

"But before I deliver it, Hetty, I would like to ask thee if in thy recent conduct on yonder wall thou broughtest these that the servants were taking notice, also neighbors who might be passing by?"

Margaret, tossing her hair back with her hand, disdained to answer, and Hetty, much crestfallen, replied hastily: "Twas but the pleasure of an idle moment, Josiah. What message sent my mother?"

"She thinks, as I do, that thou hast been here long enough," he said significantly. "Thy mother hath need of thee."

"I'll go at once, brother," she answered in nervous haste.

"It is well, Margaret," turning again to her. "I would have converse with thee an thou hast this hour idle."

His cousin's face felt slightly, but she said pleasantly: "Thou'rt ever welcome, Josiah. Step into the withdrawing room, and when I have bound my hair I will come to thee. Sweet Hetty," turning to her cousin and embracing her tenderly, "goodby, or better, as we say in France, 'au revoir.' Tell me now that thou hast been a sunbeam in my house to lighten the gloom of the long storm and that I part with thee most unwillingly."

"God be with thee, Margaret," Hetty answered soberly, turning toward home with evident reluctance.

CHAPTER VI.

INHERITING from his mother a hard, unyielding nature, young Taunston, in his life of struggle and trial to keep his farm intact, had obtained what success was his through firm resolve, grim determination and desperate endeavor. Where he could not bend he had broken, and now to gain his ends he knew no other method. So, instead of disguising his disapproval of his cousin's light conduct, he chose rather to place on his pale, gaunt features an expression of hardness and disapproval as he rose stiffly at the sound of the soft rustling of skirts approaching to receive her.

With her hair brushed smoothly back and a prim beneficent crossed over her shoulders, bidding the fair round neck that the dainty cotton frock she wore disclosed, her face calm and serene, but with a very different creature from the merry young woman who but a moment since had been running on the old wall, Margaret entered quietly and bade her kinsman be seated. He did this awkwardly, appearing ill at ease. Margaret's heart felt chilled. It was all so gloomy here, so cold and solemn. For the moment her thoughts turned toward Paris with bitter longing.

Josiah shifted on his chair and worked his pale lips as though he were at a loss for words and was angered at the fact.

At last Margaret broke the silence. "Twas a most frightful storm, good cousin. Were thy lands much damaged?"

"Nay," he replied. "Being in the valley, we are protected some. But thou, Margaret, thy hands stretch broadly in the open. Hast thou suffered losses?"

Margaret laughed lightly. "I truth, Josiah, I have not given the matter a thought. Farming, I wot, is not a woman's work or else the Lord had given her a better liking for it."

Josiah's small eyes glittered.

"Thou hast spoken the truth!" he cried, the words fairly bursting from his mouth in his eagerness to speak them. "To manage an estate, I faith, is not a woman's work. Why, cousin, I warrant that these lands under thy management alone in two years would detract in value to one-half. Thy father, Margaret, ever with an eye to thy best interests, gave me the stewardship of this estate. Didst never occur to thee what his object was in this?"

"He knew, Josiah, that thou wouldst perform thy duties punctually," she replied pleasantly, suppressing a yawn behind her hand, "for thou art known to be a zealous man and one of integrity. I ever felt that I cannot thank thee enough for thy watchful care of mine estate, good cousin."

"Margaret," Josiah said, a dark flush spreading over his countenance, "my mother-in-law, several of thy neighbors have remarked that it is not meet for so young and fair a maid to live alone."

Margaret threw up her head rather defiantly.

"I have good Elsbeth and old Giles," she replied, "and two better watchdogs ne'er had a maid to guard her. What wouldst thou better, cousin?"

"The buckle of her shoe coming loose, she leaned over to fasten it when the cross that she wore on the fine gold chain about her neck fell to the floor."

"My chain hath broken," she cried. "an' I promised dear Hilda that I would wear her gift until I died! Is there a goldsmith hereabout, Josiah?"

"Yes, old Adam Browdie, next the Sign of the Red Heart in the village," he answered. "But, cousin, it were ill for thee to ornament thyself with that unholo papist cross. 'Tis our belief that such forms are for the use of idol worshippers and are instruments of the day."

u. Already the village folk talk of the cross of gold thou dost wear so publicly with disfavor."

With a sudden movement he rose and came to her side, standing over her sternly.

"Burn it, Margaret! Burn the emblem that doth menace the salvation of thy soul! Burn the wicked trophy!" he commanded.

Margaret slipped the chain and cross into the bosom of her dress. "Be seated, Josiah," she said coldly, "unless thy visit is done and thou wouldst go on thy way."

"Just a moment longer." He walked across the room and resumed his seat. Bends of perspiration stood out on his forehead, and he spoke with an effort.

"I would further remonstrate with thee. Last night, Margaret, my mother, who doth love thee with a mother's love, ever holding thy best interests close to her heart, and I sat talking of thee until late into the night. We spoke kindly of thy beauty of face and form, but agreed that we liked not thy gay and frivolous taste in dressing. Then my mother, loving thee so truly, made excuses for thee, saying that thy father wronged thee when he sent thee to this aunt in Paris to grow up in the worldly ways of that wicked city, where all the women are vain and frivolous and all the men potrooms, blackguards."

"I deny that all the men are potrooms and blackguards!" Margaret cried, her face flushing with anger. "Heed thy words, Josiah."

He went on in his cold, immovable way, as if she had not spoken:

"An', though we fully realize his mistake in that particular, we rejoice in thy father's wisdom that ordered thy return to thy native land when thou had reached thy majority, here to spend the remainder of thy days."

Margaret made no response, but sat before him quietly, indifferent to his words, finding him even more tiresome than usual and inwardly wondering when he would consider it expedient to take his departure, and Josiah, mistaking her silence for acquiescence and approval of his remarks, took courage to advance a step farther in his deep rooted scheme to win the young mistress of the Mayland farm.

"Hast ever thought, Margaret, what idea thy father had in his mind when he did select me for the manager of this estate?"

"Thou didst ask me that before, and I truth, good cousin, I am fain to confess that I ne'er gave much thought on the subject," Margaret replied indifferently. "Perchance he knew of thy good business ability and that thou wouldst order all things well for his daughter's benefit."

Josiah, leaning forward, spoke impressively.

"His idea was that I should learn the land; so that one day I should be master here. Knowest thou that he named me for thy husband, cousin?"

"Nay, 'tis not so," Margaret cried excitedly, rising and confronting him, "or else it would be so stated in his documents. In them it is most clearly written that only at my death, should I die without issue, art thou successor here."

"Calm thyself, good cousin. The thought is new to thee, and therefore thou'rt disturbed. To me," he added in a low voice, "this thought hath been food and drink since thy father—mean," hastily correcting himself—"since first I saw thee."

He rose and came to her.

"Take time to think on the words I but just spoken. Pray for guidance to see the wisdom of accepting the love and protection of a true hearted, righteous and God fearing man, Margaret, an' thrust not aside carelessly the offer of marriage he now makes to thee."

She lifted her head hastily as if to speak, but Josiah stopped her with a stern, peremptory motion of his hand.

"Nay, cousin, answer not now. Such grave consideration as is now before thee takes time to think on. I'll speak with thee on the subject again when thou hast let the thought of me in the position of thy husband dwell longer in thy heart. God guide thee to a right decision. Fare thee well, Margaret Mayland."

A league of German manufacturers of variegated weavers has just been formed at a convention held at Berlin; seventy-four factories running 21,158 looms were represented and proprietors of thirty-two additional factories having 13,460 looms made statement to the effect that they would join the league later.

In Great Britain the year 1904 was singularly free from disputes causing a stoppage of work. The number of work people affected, and of working days lost were all the smallest figures on record.

The official announcements of an advance in wages of the employees of the United States Steel Corporation, effective in April, has not yet been made in Pittsburgh. This had led to considerable doubt as to the reliability of reports emanating from New York, of the intentions of the management. The denial by some leading independent manufacturers that they will advance wages tends to further before the situation. Nevertheless it is the opinion of leading interests that a general advance will be made and that it cannot be delayed.

The Secret of Good Coffee

Even the best housekeepers cannot make a good cup of coffee without good material. Dirty, adulterated and queerly blended coffee such as unscrupulous dealers shovel over their counters won't do. But take the pure, clean, natural flavored

LION COFFEE, the leader of all package coffees—the coffee that for over a quarter of a century has been daily welcomed in millions of homes—and you will make a drink fit for a king in this way:

HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE.

Use LION COFFEE, because to get best results you must use the best coffee. Grind your LION COFFEE under fine. Use a tablespoonful to each cup, and one extra for the pot. First mix it with a little cold water, enough to make a thick paste, and add water of an egg (if egg is to be used as a sweetener), then follow one of the following rules:

1st. WITH BOILING WATER. Add boiling water, and let it boil THREE MINUTES ONLY. Add a little cold water and set aside five minutes to settle. Serve promptly.

2d. WITH COLD WATER. Add your cold water to the paste and bring it to a boil. Then set aside, add a little cold water, and in five minutes it's ready to serve.

3. (Don't boil it too long. Don't let it stand more than ten minutes before serving. Don't use water that has been boiled before.)

TWO WAYS TO SETTLE COFFEE. 1st. With Eggs. Use part of the white of an egg, mixing it with the ground LION COFFEE before boiling. 2d. With Cold Water instead of eggs. After boiling add a dash of cold water, and set aside for eight or ten minutes, then serve through a strainer.

Insist on getting a package of genuine LION COFFEE, prepare it according to this recipe and you will only use LION COFFEE in future. (Sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages.) (Lion-head on every package.) (Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

Michigan Has Star Track Men

Weight Throwers Are of First Class Too—Wolverenes Look Like Winners of Another Championship—Fisbleigh, Pole Vaultier—Rose Not Missed.

The outdoor season in track athletics has opened, and college and club men are now working into top notch form for the championship meets.

Track and field sport has taken on a big boom in the middle west this season, and from present indications the University of Michigan will have an aggregation of men that should prove superior to any other college team in the country.

Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick is willing to wager his new spring suit of clothes that the Wolverenes will win the western championship, duplicating their performance of a year ago.

Notwithstanding the loss of Ralph Rose, the world's record holding shot putter as well as a first class hammer thrower, the outlook for a championship team at Michigan is particularly bright.

At the various athletic meets held during the winter, both indoor and outdoor, several performers were unearthed who promise to be sure point winners at their specialties.

Successor to Rose.

The man of greatest promise, strange to say, is a shot putter, in the person of Dunlap, a senior engineer, who has been coming steadily for three years, but on account of the great superiority of Rose he has hitherto attracted but scant attention.

At the indoor games in March he hurled the sixteen pound ball a distance of 45 feet 2 inches, which looks good enough to win the western intercollegiate championship. In addition to Dunlap there is also a good second string of shot putters in Garrels, who has done 44 feet, and Ackerman, with a record of 42.

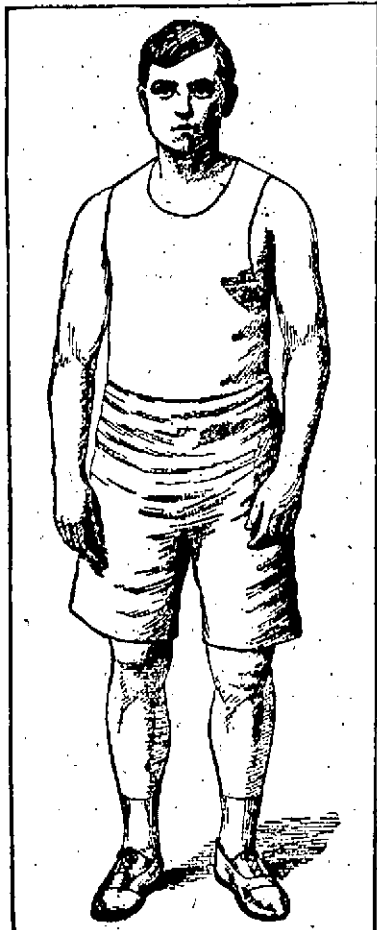

Walter Fisbleigh.

At this same indoor meet Walter Fisbleigh broke Dyron's indoor pole vaulting record of 10 feet 10 inches by sailing over the bar at 11 feet.

Keeler may develop into a fine sprinter if he can be made to last out a hundred yards. He is a lightning starter and during the winter equaled the forty yard record of 4.3 seconds. Goodwin is another runner, who may win a place on one of the relay teams. He has run a quarter indoors in 32 seconds.

Rebstock is also a runner of considerable promise. He has more than ordinary endurance.

On paper the Michigan track team looks better balanced than the team which Chicago came so near beating out for the western championship last year. In the distance runs Michigan is many points ahead of last year's aggregation. In the quarter mile the two new runners of last year, Garrels and Goodwin, are showing the good effects

KEELER, THE FAST MICHIGAN SPRINTER, of a year's training. In the half Michigan has two men in the two minute class instead of one, "Mother" Hall of last year's team. These two men are Ramey, a new half miler, and Waite, a man who has been training at Michigan over four years. Waite's case is odd in that he has been running for pleasure more than athletic honors and has not competed at all in some years.

Crack Men For Mile.

In the mile there is Coe, the 4:20 man, whose existence was not even suspected before the indoor season began. He is the fastest man Michigan ever had in this event. Besides him

Artificial Bait.

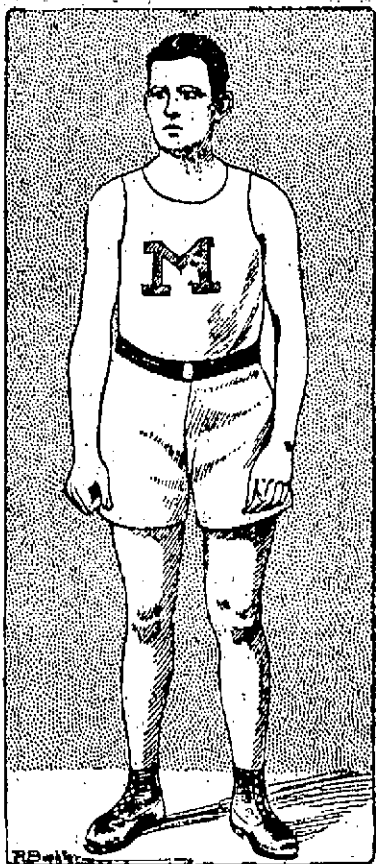

A Frenchman, named Geoffot has invented an artificial bait consisting of a gelatinous paste for use in the Newfoundland fisheries.

there are two other millers—Daane, one of the three veterans at the start of the present athletic year, and Minor, a product of the squad of cross-country runners, which numbers over a hundred men. Daane as a freshman last year did 4:35 in the mile, while Minor ran a 4:37 indoor mile recently and was kept off the indoor team only by the unusual number of good distance men.

In the two mile Michigan has the freshman Rowe, who has been running the indoor mile, in which he has done 4:32 in spite of his heavy outdoor build. There is also the veteran Stone, for two years a point winner in the conference meet.

Annie a Second Hahn.

Trainer Fitzpatrick says that Michigan's new sprinter, Annie, may cap ture nearly as many points as did Hahn last year. He says that Annie is an unusually slow starter, but that he works up his best speed in the final sprint at the tape. He covers the forty yards fully as fast as Hahn did.

REBSTOCK, PROMISING RUNNER.

In the hurdles last year there was one eligible athlete, Nicol, while there are three this year. Besides Nicol, who scored in both hurdles last June, there is Hodgson, the new hurdler who has equaled the indoor record, and Fisbleigh, one of the best hurdlers of the 1902 team.

In the high jump, in which the Wolverenes scored one point last year, there are two unusual new men—Cox, the freshman who did 6 feet in his first indoor meet, and Leete, the mid-year, who is clearing 5 feet 11 inches consistently. Cox has been kept out of all work for a month by a sprained ankle, but is now able to walk again and will be in the outdoor jumps.

This Year and Last.

The track team this year is strong in two more events than was last year's team—that is, it is better balanced, and it has been solely due to this "balance" to the second and third that secured a team cup win, that Michigan has won four consecutive conferences. Besides this, in the other events, except possibly the dash and the weights, the team is stronger than last season. In all events except the dashes and the two mile there are more good men for each event than last year.

What Trainer Fitzpatrick thinks of this team was shown by his announcement that the candidates for the Pennsylvania games would receive tryouts in the shot put, broad jump, high jump, hurdles, pole vault, dash, four mile relay and perhaps in the two mile relay. Though the men did not qualify in all these events, that was a much larger tryout than has been held before.

GRADUATE COACHES.

Allen Will Assist McCormack at Northwestern Next Fall.

Northwestern will begin its preparation for graduate coaching this year when Harry L. Allen, captain and tackle of last year's football team, will act as assistant coach to Walter McCormack. This was decided upon at a recent meeting of the faculty board.

The question of graduate coaching came before the athletic board two years ago, when McCormack was first signed, and it was decided that upon the expiration of his contract the graduate system would be installed.

In order to arouse enthusiasm among the student body and find out definitely the amount of material on hand for next year a football rally was held recently. A number of old Northwestern football stars were present.

Baseball candidates from the professional schools in Chicago combined with those of the liberal arts in a general practice held at the university gymnasium in Evanston a few days ago. Ten new men reported for practice, which increases the squad to over sixty. Three pitchers were discovered among the students of the professional schools—Pollard, Stanton and Scranton. These, together with Bragg, who shows great promise, remove all anxiety concerning the position of pitcher.

Home Run For Anson.

Pop Anson was recently elected city clerk of Chicago at the annual election. The city clerkship pays $15,000 a year. That beats any baseball salary Anson ever earned, playing first base for Chicago.

Talking about his election, Pop says, "Twas a home run."

SEEKS FORTUNE AT THE RACES

Professional Dancer Finds Roll of Bills and Tosses It to Waiting Crowd.

WAS ON WAY TO BORROW STAKE

Young Man Had Tip on the Winning Horse at Long Odds and Spurns to Keep Money He Thought was Counterfeit.

Paterson, N. J., April 22.—Johnny Nolan dances well enough to earn a living at it, but the same joyous spirit that makes him dance so well generates financial aspirations which his nimble legs cannot overtake. Hence Johnny's enlistment into the ranks of railbirds and dreamers whose continuous dream is exchanging a $1 bill for the bookmakers' $100 notes.

Johnny was hot on the trail of his iridescent illusion. A friend who is a relative to an assistant to a jockey's helper, who had slept with a certain horse, had told him a "sure thing" for the races. Nolan, without doubts and without money, hastened down Straight street to the Susquehanna station to borrow the price of a bet—the cornerstone of his coming fortune.

He Wouldn't Be Fooled.

Hurrying along about dusk, Johnny's eye fell upon a roll of green, which, if real, and translated into board, lodging and cafe service, would guarantee him a long stay at the St. Regis.

"Ah, there, my Cassie Chadwick notes of hand," he gurgled, jeeringly, as he kept on going.

The resemblance to the real thing, however, was too strong. The dancer went back and picked up the roll.

Two boys, a man, and a woman saw him do it. Now, Johnny congratulates himself on the fact he never had been caught by these silly tricks. He prides himself on the scores of times he has fooled the other fellows, and he decided to hang some more scalps to his belt.

Throws Money to Crowd.

Staggering to the corner he simulated the warwhoop of an inebriate, and peeling a three-ply layer from his newly found roll, tossed it into the air. The two boys, the man and woman fell upon the green with precipitation. Before Johnny's "come ons" had got through tearing one another's clothes to pieces he tossed out another handful to the evening breeze.

"Come to papa for your pin money," he cried joyously as the crowd grew and the roll diminished.

All seemed in such a hurry to get away when there was no more of the wad that Johnny pondered. Could it be possible that—? Never! Never! Why, there isn't that much real money in Paterson.

Discovers His Mistake.

Here Johnny picked up a bill that had been abandoned in the scattering exodus and looked at it.

"Great Jersey Applejack!" he exclaimed. Then he felt it carefully again and again. His senses began to desert him.

"What!" he murmured feebly, "am I stung? Am I—"

At the same time Charles W. Elbow, a Main street merchant, was telling a sergeant at the police station that he had lost $200 near the Susquehanna station and that he needed it badly. The detective who hurried out on the case found Nolan gasping and took him to a nearby saloon to revive him. Then he heard the frightful story.

Nobody has told Elbow yet, as the merchant is stout and inclined to apoplexy.

RAINPROOF WRAPS OF SILKY SICILIENNE

Here is a smart shade of light mauve, or putty color, is used, the soft finish of the waterproofed silk-came presenting almost the appearance of silk. The coat is laid in deep tucks, pressed flat, at the shoulder seams, these released below the waistline to make the fullness of the fashionably full skirt. The back is similar in cut to the front, and the seams are cut with generous gores. Collar and lapels are after the mannish tailored style, and the sicilienne covered buttons have ivory rims, cord loops instead of buttonholes making the fastening. The sleeve is noticeably full, the wiry body of the sicilienne holding out the fullness to excellent advantage; and this fullness is tucked above the wrist, so that the sleeve fits snugly into the turned cuff. A belt confines the fullness at the waist, but is not drawn too snugly for smartness.
